ARFIE (Association for Research and Training on Integration in Europe) was established in 1992 as a European NGO to:

- Improve the support, social inclusion and availability of services for people with disabilities, people with important dependency needs and with associated mental health needs;
- Promote quality staff training for social service providers.

Today ARFIE is a wide European network of social service providers and professionals that promotes EU projects and research with the aim of fostering innovative and inclusive approaches in the field of service provision for people with disabilities.

ARFIE membership is open to all organisations active in the field of social care that share the values enshrined in the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, that believe in the self-determination of people with disability and professionalisation of service providers.

ARFIE strongly believes that a person with disability should be enabled to be the main decision-maker in his/her future life projects and that professionals should be trained, skilled and qualified to offer an adequate support to the evolving needs of people with disabilities.

ARFIE is a member of the European Disability Forum and fully supports the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, contributing to its implementation.
